DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by US Pat. No. 6,067,875 to Ritchey et al.

Ritchey et al disclose a bicycle shift control device comprising an outer casing 30 having a cable bore and an access opening, visible in figure 7C, from which a cable attachment point is accessible. A cable operated winding mechanism is disposed in said outer casing, including the pawl 76 and valleys 80. A maintenance cover 86 is slideably coupled to the outer casing as disclosed in column 7, lines 57-60. The casing includes a channel 90, and complementary retaining elements 88, 92, and 56 to maintain the cover in the closed position. The outer casing includes a first, stationary half 30 and a second half 78 that rotates with the cable that are fixedly axially coupled together and the access opening is partially formed in each casing half, most clearly seen in Figure 7C. The maintenance cover includes a plurality of ribs, the two sides 200 of the cover, and is curved.

Response to Arguments

3. Applicant's arguments filed November 1, 2002 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. In response to applicant's argument that the maintenance cover of Ritchey is not configured to move substantially parallel to the outer surface and is not slidably coupled, a recitation of the intended use of the claimed invention must result in a structural difference between the claimed invention and the prior art in order to patentably distinguish the claimed invention from the prior art. If the prior art structure is capable of performing the intended use, then it meets the claim. In a claim drawn to a process of making, the intended use must result in a manipulative difference as compared to the prior art. See In re Casey, 152 USPQ 235 (CCPA 1967) and In re Otto, 136 USPQ 458, 459 (CCPA 1963). Applicant also argues that the cover of Ritchey does not include a plurality of ribs forming the handle element, but the handle element of Ritchey comprises the side walls of the cover, which are a plurality of ribs as broadly claimed.

Conclusion

4. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
